The night of June 16 turns magical in Pisa, as residents fill the streets to celebrate their patron saint, San Ranieri.

The Pisa Duomo, the Leaning Tower, and every building along the Arno is meticulously covered in candles.

Flickering yellow flames light up each doorway and window ledge, their reflections float along the Arno's water so vibrantly, it becomes clear why this night is called "La Luminara," Italian for "The Illumination."

This tradition came to Pisa in 1688, when Cosimo de'Medici held a grand celebration to honor the moving of the ashes of San Ranieri to an elaborate capella in the Duomo di Pisa. Over the decades, La Luminara has been temporarily interrupted by a poor economy, World War II. and even a flood in the 1960's.

Today, nothing stands in the way of this festival. Streets along the Arno will be closed to cars, allowing pedestrians to walk along the river, where vendors set up stands selling food, sweets and trinkets for the kids.

Later in the evening, there will be a spectacular fireworks show, marking an impressive finale to this truly unique celebration.

For more information on this ITR trip, call 633-7589/8231.
